these, which are safer than many with which the miners are carclessly familiar. The car will also carry a wall device for first aid use in factories. In a single factory last year, 107 accidents were treated by first aid men among the workers, and the rehef would be greatly simplified by having the materials ready to hand as would be possible with the use of this first aid wall package. wall package.

Red Cross Work.

The Red Cross work among the miners was inaugurated last January, and in three months had reached the representatives of 25,000 mine employees. It has been gladly welcomed by both men and mine managers, also by physicians, for as a great physician has said.

"The fate of a wounded man depends in whose hands he falls first."

First Aid squads among the miners of the anthracite coal region in Pennsylvania had been in existence for several years when the Ead Gross society. of the authracite coal region in Pennsylvania had been in existence for several years when the Red Cross society took up the work. The war department in 1908 through the courtesy of the surgeon general, detailed three medical officers to act as judges or umpires, at the third annual First Aid contest of the Pennsylvania Hillside coal companies. One of the judges was Major Charles Lynch, a distinguished medical officer who had been a military observer during the Russo-Japanese war on the Japanese side, and who is also the author of the American Red Cross-First Aid text book. Upon his return to Washington he brought the matter to the attention of the Red Cross, who thought so well of this humane and life saving work of First Aid in the mines that they arranged an inter-company contest to he held under the auspices of the American Red Cross. This remarakble contest was held last October at Valley View park, Wilkesbarre, Theaters would have to close their

Here the various men and companies competed in the four events applying first aid to injured miners. The fourth event, in which fall teams contested for a silver loving cup, represented a miner, after a fall of roof and gas explosion, who had suffered a compound fracture of the right thigh, compound fracture of the left arm, with bleeding in jets, and who had been severely burned about face and arms. Five men dressed the wounds, carried the man over steam pipe and track, under trolley wire, up breaker steps, over proppile, over loaded mine car, and placed him in an ambulance in fifteen min utes. utes,

A Red Cross nurse must be 25 years old; she must fill certain rigid requirements, as to professional training and experience, and in time of war, she must take an cath of allegiance to the United States before she dons the blue who goes to Chicago next week to speak.

Wanted—$2,000,000.

The great meeting of the Internation al Red Cross society held every five years, will come to Washington in 1912.

"and we want a membership by that time which will not put us to sname."

Nurses are not required to respond to a call for service in time of peace, when such response would seriously interfere with duties already assumed, but in the event of war all Red Cross nurses would be expected to communi-in the interest of this fund. New York alone has raised nearly one-half million of the two million which is need ed for this great and humane work. The New Yorkers are putting forth every effort to raise the remaining $6, million.

Since its reorganization in 1905 the American Red Cross has expended near-iv $5,000,000 in relief, and yet not a dollar of this vast sum was applied for purposes connected with war or military operations.

before the rest of the world," said Miss Boardman. One can readily under-stand this desire when the fact is considered that Japan alone has 1,100,000 Red Cress members, while America has not 20,000. "Won't yen on?" says Misa Boardman, and she says this to every man, woman and child in the United States of America.
